FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE—

New Quartermaster Research and Development Command

BY BRIG. GEN. JOSEPH C. ODELL*

BY General Order No. 73, the Quartermaster Research and Development Command was established at Natick, Mass., on 28 September 1953. This R&D Laboratory fulfills a long standing requirement of the Quartermaster Corps for a facility designed for the specific purpose of carrying out Quartermaster research and development. It will also provide technical support for Quartermaster's extensive procurement program which, in time of peace, has consumed 85% of the Army dollars.

Brig. Gen. Odell

The R&D Command was located at Natick, Mass., on a site selected by the Secretary of Defense, in compliance with the provisions of Public Law 424, 81st Congress. This law allowed for an appropriation of "$11,000,000 for acquisition of land and for the construction thereon of a research laboratory—and for such utilities and appurtenances as, in the judgment of the Secretary of the Army, may be necessary in connection therewith."

Considerations bearing on the selection of the Natick location were an inexhaustible supply of free water, satisfactory living conditions, and proximity to educational and cultural institutions.

USAF Pilot Program Marks ROTC Dispute

The Pentagon is under heavy and influential pressure to shoot down the Air Force plan—approved by the Defense Department last year—which would call thousands of non-flying ROTC graduates to active duty as enlisted men, instead of officers, beginning this June.

A high-level controversy has developed. With graduation not far off, the issue must be settled shortly.

Meantime, there is anxiety in the Air Force, as well as on scores of college campuses.

Top Air Force authorities, worried because of a persistent inability to obtain adequate numbers of high-quality applicants for flying training and faced with a requirement for additional pilots to man the 137-wing program, are warning that if the present plan is reversed there will be dire results.

They say that without the added pressure to motivate flying training requests in ROTC ranks the Air Force will find it impossible to obtain enough new pilots with college training.

The alternative would be to commission as jet-age pilots thousands of young men who possess only a high school education—if indeed even enough of these youths would volunteer and be found qualified.

This possibility has Air Force leaders fighting hard against the growing threat to the ROTC plan, especially in view of the drive during the last few years to raise the educational level of Air Force officers, now relatively the lowest in all the Services.

These are some of the arguments, coupled with the budgetary cutbacks, which prompted Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah and Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson to give the Air Force the green light last year on a proposal to commission only those ROTC graduates who apply for flying training—plus another 1000 specialists.

The remaining members of the ROTC graduating classes—more than 4000 ac-

Slash Port Security Defense Despite FBI Atomic Weapons "Smuggling" Warning

The nation's port security program—in the face of an increased atomic bomb peril—will be slashed in half beginning 1 July.

Coast Guard authorities, responsible for the safety of the ports, have conceded publicly that the program set up after Korea and now to be drastically reduced was only a "limited" effort at best.

Coast Guard Headquarters has disclosed plans to disestablish Port Security units at Ellis Island, N. Y., Philadelphia, Pa., and San Francisco, Calif.

The forthcoming cut from 3936 to 1833 in the number of Coast Guard officers and men assigned to port security details comes in the wake of the warning by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to police officers against the danger of atomic weapons being smuggled into the U. S.

That threat was one of the major reasons why the huge WWII port security activity was revived after hostilities broke out in Korea.

MAY BOOST "HOUSEHOLD" CEILING

House Appropriations Committee sources told THE JOURNAL this week that the present rider in the Appropriations Act restricting to 9000 pounds the weight of household goods which may be shipped by military families stands a good chance of being modified upwards. This restriction has been a source of considerable dissatisfaction in all the Services, particularly in view of regulations putting new limitations on the amount of furniture authorized for Government quarters.

Appropriations Committee members are said to have been favorably impressed with presentations made by Defense officials asking relief from the present limitation. Pentagon authorities have stated repeatedly that the rider on transportation of household goods should be eliminated or modified as part of the current drive to raise career attractiveness.

Now, according to members of Congress, such action is a definite possibility for fiscal year 1955.

Cut in Excise Taxes Will Bring Lower Prices on Many Items in Post Exchanges

All savings represented by the reduction in excise taxes, both direct and indirect, will be passed on to Service customers in Army and Air Force Exchanges, Maj. Gen. Edward H. White, USAF, head of the Exchange Service, announced this week.

These reductions, passed by Congress and approved by the President, are from 20 per cent of the rated prices down to 10 per cent on quality luggage and drug store type items.

Since 1949, the Exchanges have been paying these and other taxes in full, so that the new tax reduction will represent a substantial savings to Service personnel.

The reductions include a cut from 10 to 5 per cent in the appliance field, from 15 to 10 per cent on sporting goods, from 15 to 10 per cent on mechanical pens, pencils and lighters, from 20 to 10 per cent on light bulbs and tubes, and from 20 to 10 per cent on cameras, lenses, and film on the manufacturers' tax.

General White emphasized that this will mean lower costs on most of this merchandise to the Exchanges, and these lowered costs will be passed on to Service customers in full.

MEDCARE FOR ALL

Congress has been given a preview of the Defense Department family medical care bill, soon to reach Capitol Hill. A report on the proposed measure was presented to the House by Representative Bob Wilson (R-Calif.), who is the sponsor of a military pay raise bill and who has been a leader in the campaign to raise career attractiveness. A detailed report on his outline of what the medical care bill will propose—and why—is published on page 931.

AF BANDSMEN "DOUBLE IN BRASS"

Once the source of heavy discord, an Air Force program aimed at getting more music with less bandsmen is now underway at full foot.

Officials say that the plan is receiving harmonious reaction and at the same time will save enough manpower to staff a fighter wing.

The more-music-per-man program calls for diminishing by about a fourth the number of Air Force bands. The original fiscal '54 band plan called for 110 units—actual highest strength was 94—but now only 72 are to be authorized.

Bandsmen strength will drop from a one-time objective of 4063, actual force of 3608 to a lower T/O&E key of 2406.

When Congress took action last year demanding a drastic reduction in Air Force bands, there was a clamor of protest from air bases, where bands are considered a big morale booster. These objections prompted full-scale studies at the Pentagon on how to eliminate bandsmen but retain the music.

The answer: The use of a single band to play at a number of bases instead of only at its home base. Air Force authorities insist that the use of travelling bandsmen will result in more music—not less—on an Air Force-wide basis.

They say that the "doubling in brass" will pay off all on all scores.

SPOKANE HAS "APPRECIATION DAY"

Businessmen in Spokane, Wash., will celebrate Military Appreciation Day 30 April by offering goods and services to uniformed personnel at discounts.

Spokane's retailers plan the special "get acquainted" day to show officers and men stationed at Fairchild AFB that they are appreciated and welcomed to trade and take part in Spokane community life.

Brig. Gen. James V. Edmundson approved the plan and officially proclaimed 30 April and 1 May as base holidays so as many people as possible can take advantage of the offering.

Along with Appreciation Day, airmen will be chosen as honorary mayor, councilman, judge and chiefs of the police and fire departments for Spokane.

Army Releases Largest '54 Promotion Lists, Possibility of New Selections Seen Higher

THE Army this week released more than 1,450 temporary promotions to lieutenant colonel, major and captain amid unofficial reports that new selection boards may be convened late this spring or early summer.

The promotions announced this week are the largest increment in 1954, and the expectation is that April will see as many, or more, temporary advancements.

The fact that the promotion pace is being stepped up indicates that the Army has successfully completed the adjustment to the reduced manpower plan and is now on an even keel insofar as officer promotions are concerned.

Final plans for new promotion selections are dependent, of course, on Congressional action on the pending fiscal '55 budget.

The cutoff dates reached this week were 18 May 1950 for lieutenant colonel as 303 majors were advanced, 299 of them in S.O. 60, 26 March, and four in S.O. 61, 29 March; 1 March 1949 for 385 captains promoted to major, of which 374 were in S.O. No. 60 and 11 in S.O. 61, and 26 August 1950 for 793 first lieutenants promoted to captain, of whom 411 were announced in S.O. 60 and 382 in S.O. 61.

Here is the breakdown for the promotions announced in S.O. No. 60:

LT. GEN. JOSEPH M. SWING, USA-RET. (right), receives a silver punchbowl and tray given him and Mrs. Swing by the officers of the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team and their ladies. The regiment was a unit of the 11th Airborne Division when General Swing commanded it during the WWII liberation of the Philippines. Making the presentation in General Swing's San Francisco home is Lt. Col. Daniel P. Gallagher, a former battalion commander in the 187th, who was en route to a new assignment from Japan, where the 187th ARTC is now stationed.

Bottled Liquor Sales Capped At 733 Service Bases; 79 "Remote" Stay Open

Six hours before the deadline, the Defense Department announced on 31 March that only 79 of 812 military installations in the U. S. permitted to sell liquor by the bottle would stay in business after 1 April.

The rest were ordered shut down, including numerous Navy and Marine Corps facilities which long had been accorded the privilege of bottled liquor sales.

The 79 exceptions, including 30 Army, 14 Navy, 25 Air Force and 10 Marine Corps, were judged to be "remote areas" and so will be permitted to continue packaged sales. Each is at least 10 miles from the nearest source of bottled sales, the Pentagon said.

It was in an effort to make liquor sales "unified" that the Defense Department last year authorized Army and Air Force installations to enjoy the same benefits as have been accorded the Navy and Marine Corps.

The proposal drew strong protests. In the face of heavy pressure, the Defense Department reversed its policy and said that bottled sales would be permitted after 1 April only at bases designated as "remote."

Here are the "remote" exceptions:

Army Tells Plans For Reserve-Guard Advisors

Complying with provisions of the Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1952, the Army has announced that certain National Guard and Reserve officers will act as advisors on National Guard and Reserve affairs at headquarters of each of the six continental Armies.

One colonel or lieutenant colonel of each of the Reserve components will be given additional duties "to assist and participate in the preparation and administration of all policies and regulations affecting their Reserve component."

This additional duty assignment procedure will be in effect until funds are provided for specific assignment of personnel to perform these functions on a full-duty basis.

Although the law provides that Reserve component officers assigned to such duty will be additional numbers of the staff with which serving, budgetary limitations on the strength of the active Army have precluded such action. However, Army planning for Fiscal Year 1956 includes these officer personnel requirements in the National Guard and Army Reserve budgets. The number of officers needed would be over and above active Army strength limitations.

In the event the planned 1956 budget items are approved, Reserve component officers would be ordered to active duty, with their consent, for specified periods to serve in these advisory positions.

Col. Thomas Div CofS

Col. Evert S. Thomas, jr., has been named Chief of Staff of the 7th Infantry Division, Korea. He replaces Col. Joseph E. Bastion, jr., who will assume new duties with Headquarters, KMAC.

10th Armored History

"Impact," the battle story of the 10th Armored Division which played a key role in the bloody siege of Bastogne, was published this week by Bradbury, Sayles, O'Neill Company, Inc., of New York.

Written by Lester M. Nichols, former press officer for the Division, the 356-page book is a carefully documented narrative of the day-to-day combat history of one of America's greatest fighting divisions. It is illustrated with 29 battle maps, 7 operational charts and 150 pictures, and is priced at $7.50.

In addition to Bastogne, the Division, which was part of General Patton's Third Army, helped capture the 1500-year old Metz Fortress and overran the Saar-Moselle Triangle, and was the first division of General Patton's army to enter Germany. While under General Patch, it was the first division of the Seventh Army to cross the Austrian border.

Published this year to coincide with the observance of the 10th anniversary of the Battle of the Bulge, "Impact" was seven years in preparation.

Quartermaster Research and Development Command

It was felt that this area presented conditions conducive to maximum efficiency on the part of the scientists and technologists striving to achieve research and development objectives.

The Research and Development Command is situated on a wooded peninsula jutting out into six-mile long Lake Cochituate. The Laboratory, adjacent to the town of Natick, is three miles from Framingham and seventeen miles west of Boston on the main thoroughfare, Route 9, between Boston and Worcester.

Approximately 100 acres of land are available to the R&D Command for utilization and security protection. It was necessary for the Government to purchase only a small portion of the land. Additional land, the greater part of the tract, was made available to the Government along with water rights by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Five major buildings dominate the grounds. These are the Administration, Research, Development, Climatic, and Engineering Buildings. The functional purpose for each structure is designated in its title.

The Administration Building, a three-story reinforced concrete structure, will house the administrative offices, legal offices, and the technical library. At the north end of the Administration Building is a 500-seat capacity auditorium. A cafeteria is located in the basement.

At right angles to the Administration Building—forming the sides of a quadrangle—are two parallel structures, the Research and Development Buildings.

Located beyond the Research and Development Buildings near the tip of the peninsula is the Climatic Building which is equipped with arctic and tropic chambers for environmental protection research. In these climatic chambers it is possible to simulate the extreme environmental conditions found in any area of the world from the windswept frigid wastes of the Arctic to the steaming jungles and arid deserts of the tropical latitudes—areas in which our fighting men must be prepared to fight if necessary. Each chamber is 65 feet long, 10 feet wide, and 15 feet high—space sufficient for test teams of up to 25 men to live in and be studied under conditions which ground troops may encounter. Radiation panels in the walls simulate the effect of distant spaces. In both the tropic and arctic chambers it is possible to control and regulate temperatures, humidity, precipitation—whether in the form of rain or snow—and wind velocity. Special equipment in the chambers allows compilation of data pertaining to human efficiency when subjected to physical stress under extreme climatic conditions. These climatic chambers make it possible to measure and record psychological and physiological effects on the efficiency level of troops eating special arctic rations, clothing in experimental arctic ensembles, and expending measured amounts of energy under simulated arctic conditions.

The water required for the refrigeration equipment, if, for example the arctic chamber were to be maintained at -40° F. with a simulated 40 mile wind on a summer day, would approach that used each day by many large cities. The water necessary for refrigeration purposes will be pumped from Lake Cochituate through the Climatic Building and returned uncontaminated to the lake after use.

In the Engineering Building are the Textile, Clothing and Footwear, Chemicals and Plastics, and Mechanical Products research and development facilities. Of particular interest in this building is the textile finishing plant where experimental fabric additives designed to effect increased fire, wind, and mildew resistant qualities, better tear resistance, or camouflage needs may be evaluated.

The rain tower, also located in the Engineering Building, allows technologists to simulate precipitation conditions of falling or wind-driven rain. The rain tower permits simulated rain to fall 40 feet for use in the testing of ponchos, rain coats, tents and the rain penetration resistance of pieces of mobile mechanical equipment which Quartermaster develops, tests and procures.

The technical organization of the Command will continue essentially as in the past. The Environmental Protection (Please turn to Page 946)

Continued GROWTH and PROGRESS revealed in 32nd Annual Report of

UNITED SERVICES AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION

It is gratifying to report that 1953 was one of the most successful years in the 32 years history of the Association.

During 1953 the Association wrote $18,751,449.35 in automobile and household insurance premiums, an increase of $5,691,212.36 over 1952. This increase in business of 43.58% was the largest premium volume of new business written in any year of the Association's history.

Several factors enter into this very satisfactory showing. In 1952 the Association extended its services to the Continent of Europe, thus permitting many officers to continue their policies with the Association when ordered to Europe. Many other officers took out their first policies with the Association because of this territorial extension. Further, persons in active military service continued to find it difficult to obtain insurance through normal channels. The Association is particularly geared to serve this type of risk as the increase in the total number of members shows. As of December 31, 1953 there were 179,840 members carrying 227,380 policies, reflecting an increase of 34.31% in members and 33.71% in policies.

at cost!

And that's exactly what I'm getting by mailing in my regular deposit to the Armed Forces Medical Aid Association. I know that my wife and kids have top-notch hospitalization protection at the lowest possible damage to the pocket. Why? Because AFMAA is our own, non-profit, voluntary association.

Maybe that's why they call me I. M. Ready — because I'm all set in case any of the family goes to the hospital. I know they'll get payments for hospital room, for surgery, for doctors' hospital calls, for emergency accidents, and even for maternity after a ten months' waiting period.

The cost is only $5.50 a month with wife only; $8.00 with kids. Write — right now — to the address below for your free illustrated booklet. I. M. Ready — are you?

Thousand USNR Officers Face Budget Axe; Board Will Draw "Contract Tour" Slate

The Navy will convene a selection board next week to name 1000 Reserve officers in the rank of lieutenant and above—one out of eight—for involuntary release from active duty.

Those to be forced-out will be notified about 1 June and will receive four months notice.

The same board will also review requests for assignment to or retention in the TAR program and will recommend priority of issuance of active duty agreements or "contract tours" for certain Reservists.

All together, the Navy will lose about 5000 officers during the next fiscal year, but only 1000 of these by force-out.

The new involuntary release program follows the separation during fiscal '54 of 2000 Reserve officers who had wanted to remain in active service.

The cutback in manpower has required the elimination programs, Navy officials said.

Details were reported to the fleet in ALNAV 8, and at the Pentagon a detailed briefing was presented by VADM. J. L. Holloway, Jr., Chief of Naval Personnel, to acquaint reporters with the coming selection procedures.

Here is a transcript of Admiral Holloway's remarks:

"As you know, our planning in the Navy shows that we will have to reduce the number of officers serving on active duty by some five thousand during Fiscal Year 1955. This is in consonance with the phased reduction in force now being experienced by other services. Many variables enter into the considerations as to how the Navy can reduce five thousand officers on active duty; but paramount is the needs of the service to man effectively our combat forces, including needed junior officers; to protect certain specialized fields of professional endeavor; and to insure that the involuntary releases necessary are accomplished impartially and meritoriously.

"WE IN THE NAVY see to it that Reserve Officers have an influential role in the administration of their program and that they are represented at the seat of the Government. Our program provides for Reserve Officers on active duty in connection with the training and administration of the Naval Reserve. This is called the TAR program. The Navy's plan is in full consonance with the Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1952 (Public Law 476, 82d Congress). This act also provides for the issuance of active duty agreements to certain Reserve Officers for service on active duty for stipulated periods of from one to five years. To attain optimum administrative results these two aspects have been integrated with other facets of the Naval Reserve-officer-on-active-duty picture.

"As the personnel on active duty in the Navy are reduced in accordance with planned strength, the Naval Reserve takes on an increased importance and significance.

"To integrate all these considerations regarding Reserve Officers on active duty, we have made special and complete studies in the Bureau of Naval Personnel. This has resulted in an integrated program now approved for implementation. It will give emphasis where due and needed, and will reconcile the interests of individuals and that of the service, I believe, to the optimum degree.

"WE ARE GRATIFIED that our planning for this Fiscal Year was such as to avoid the necessity of involuntary releases in addition to those initially released in accordance with the lists established by the Secretary of the Navy Board headed by Rear Admiral Ellery W. Stone, USNR. This new over-all program completely supersedes as of 1 July 1954 the related program of last year which was implemented by the determinations of that Board. We presently anticipate that only 1,000 officers will have to be involuntarily released during Fiscal 1955.

"As spelled out in ALNAV 8, the 'Reserve Officer Review Board' to be headed by a distinguished reserve Flag Officer, will convene on or about 6 April 1954 for several purposes:

"a. To determine the priority of retention on active duty of voluntarily extended active duty reserve officers now serving in the grades of LT and above.

"b. To review requests for assignment to or retention in the TAR program as prescribed annually under its terms.

"c. To recommend priority of issuance of active duty agreements or contracts to certain Reserve Officers.

"We anticipate that some 1000 Reserve LTs and above will have to be involuntarily released from the some 8000 Reserve Officers now serving beyond obligated periods to bring the Navy within its planned ceiling. It is expected that the Board will complete its work by about mid-May, and that releases will be given 1 June notices of late September separations. This is a continuation of our practice of giving four full months notice prior to release. The Board's determinations regarding assignments to the TAR program and priority for active duty agreements will constitute a readily available priority list for my future use as the needs of the service dictate.

"In connection with the Navy's important WAVE program, the Reserve personnel of the WAVES will be represented on the Board by a WAVE Reserve Officer.

"The commanders in the field have been requested, as will be noted in ALNAV 8-54, to make specific recommendations as to the Reserve Officers of their command whom they consider particularly valuable for retention on active duty.

"Most of you will recall that the Navy recently liberalized its resignation and reversion policy. This was promulgated in ALNAV 1 of 8 January 1954. Under its provisions, we received and approved requests for resignation from career officers, and reversion to enlisted status and transfer to the Fleet Reserve of temporary officers. The numbers involved have not been large as yet. (As of 15 March: 301 Resign Requests received, 264 of which appear qualifying under terms; 270 Reversion Requests received; 270 of which appear qualifying under terms). However, they will reduce the number of Reserve Officer releases accordingly.

"I WISH TO EMPHASIZE most clearly, on behalf of Secretary Anderson and the entire nation, that the involuntary release does not reflect adversely upon any reserve officer under this program. We all recognize and cherish the invaluable and magnificent contribution to service and nation made by all our Reserve Officers at great personal and family sacrifice, during critical periods in our history. I trust that all America will remember this with us, as we salute the services of these splendid officers."

JUNEAU AIDS ORPHANS

Clothing for Greek orphans of the Ionian Islands, victims of a recent earthquake which devastated a large portion of that area, has been collected by the crew of the U. S. Navy cruiser Juneau.

The campaign for the disaster victims was launched voluntarily on board the Juneau after recent visits to Greek ports while assigned to the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean.

The clothing was presented 30 March during ceremonies at the U.S. Naval Base, Philadelphia, Pa., to the HHMS Doxa and HHMS Mikl for delivery to the Ionian Islands.

Celebrate Coral Sea Victory

Fleet Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., naval commander in the Southwest Pacific during WWII, will represent the U. S. Navy at the annual Coral Sea Celebration in Australia 27 April to 14 May 1954, commemorating the 12th anniversary of the Battle of the Coral Sea.

Admiral Halsey will visit Australia as a guest of the Australian Government and the Australian American Association; he will be guest of honor at the ceremonies.

Also participating in the ceremonies will be the USS Tarawa, commanded by Capt. William O. Burch, Jr., USN.

USAF Pilot Program Marks ROTC Dispute

cording to latest figures—would go on active duty in the rank of airman third class. They would undoubtedly be afforded priority consideration for OCS vacancies and for direct commissions should such a requirement develop during their tours. At the end of the two-year airman service, these ROTC graduates would receive commissions in the Reserve.

At first, there were few protests to this proposal, but with graduation plans now being made on campuses around the nation, the Air Force ROTC plan is now under new and high-powered fire.

College presidents are charging that the Defense Department is not keeping faith with students who were promised commissions if they completed the four-year ROTC program, and who now will serve as enlisted men.

These complaints are aggravated by the fact that the Defense Department has ruled recently, subject to receiving Congressional O.K., that all Army ROTC graduates will be called for two-year tours as lieutenants.

The Army had wanted to call only about a third of its ROTC graduates to duty for two-year tours, with the remainder to serve on active duty for 90 days in order to complete branch training and then be given a strict obligation in the Reserve, as officers.

This suggestion won strong favor from Reserve leaders, but was rejected by the Defense Department on the ground that the men had been deferred from the draft to attend college and therefore should serve as long as draftees.

On college campuses, however, presidents are pointing out that this means commencement day will see all Army ROTC graduates receive commissions, while about a third of the Air Force ROTC graduates will receive only "certificates of completion."

The college presidents and the students who are not now due to receive commissions are winning support from legislators and from Reserve officials in their campaign to win a policy reversal from the Pentagon.

The protests that are being made have powerful backing, Defense officials concede.

The Air Force meantime is countering with strong arguments, pointing out that with greater reliance on airpower the Nation must have adequate numbers of highly qualified pilots.

In this connection, Air Force officials cite this statistical rundown.

In 1953, the ROTC classes produced about 2900 applicants for flying training. This was raised to 3500 for the 1954 class prior to the Defense Department announcement concerning the plan to commission only those who apply for flying training.

What happened? Flying training applications doubled. Similar increases are reported for the 1955 class.

Faced with a need of graduating 7800 pilots per year instead of a previously scheduled 7000, Air Force authorities say that if the present ROTC plan is followed, the pilot problem can be licked.

If it is rescinded, they say, it will mean either that the Air Force won't be able to find enough young pilots or that the vacancies will be filled by large percentages of high-school graduates, who will not be adequately prepared for a career as an Air Force officer.

AF'S "UNCLE JOE" RETIRES

Top Defense Department and Air Force officials participated in retirement ceremonies at Bolling AFB, Washington, D. C., 31 March for General John K. Cannon, the Air Forces' senior officer.

Known affectionately as "Uncle Joe," General Cannon stepped down from his post as chief of the Tactical Air Command to end a service career that spanned 37 years, from the days of the flying jennies of the twenties to the supersonic jets.

Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott presented General Cannon with a third oak leaf cluster to the Distinguished Service Medal, and lauded him for "development of Air Force policies, doctrines and techniques" of tactical air power and for creating "an indelible blueprint for tactical air operations in the future."

The ceremonies included a review of 2,000 airmen and WAFs, but a flight of 40 jet fighters and bombers was cancelled because of bad weather.

General Cannon's successor is General Otto P. Weyland, the former commander of the Far East Air Force.

WHITE HOUSE O.K.'S ACADEMY

President Eisenhower on 1 April signed into law the bill authorizing establishment of an Air Force Academy—top priority bill in the Defense Department's 1954 legislative program. That the President should give the measure his endorsement was no surprise; in 1949 he was vice-chairman of a board which recommended its establishment.

As approved by Congress, the bill calls for a board to recommend a site to the Secretary of the Air Force. Provision is made also for transfer of up to 12½ per cent of the graduating classes from the Air Force Academy to the other Services.

Immediately after the President signed the measure, a fact sheet was made available at the Pentagon, which said the following "important purposes" will be served by establishment of the third Service Academy:

1. It will eliminate the drain on the Military and Naval Academies which heretofore have had to furnish 25% of their graduates to the Air Force.
2. The number of officers obtained from these two sources is not enough to maintain an adequate corps of career minded officers in the Air Force. Top-notch graduates of civilian colleges are normally not interested in the lesser financial attractions offered by careers in the Air Force. The Academy will supply these officers.
3. It will furnish air-minded and air-experienced officers with training in Air Force specialties rather than Army or Navy specialties.
4. Approximately 1200 regular officers must be taken into the Air Force annually. All studies of regular officer needs for all three services reflect the belief that 50% of the regular officers should be Service Academy graduates with 50% coming from civilian colleges. It is impossible to meet these quotas with the two existing Academies.
5. The training program will enable the Air Force to establish and enforce the highest standards of loyalty, integrity, and patriotism, and to motivate its cadets to a lifetime of service in the armed forces.
6. It will provide a source for large numbers of regular officers who will eventually be specialized in both pilot and aircraft observer positions. There is an increasing need for such flying officers in the Air Force in both fighter and bomber-type aircraft.
7. The intangible but invaluable factors of morale, esprit de corps, and devotion to the service resulting from the establishment of the Air Academy will inevitably contribute to the effectiveness of the entire Air Force.

Promote 875 Inactive

Reservists To Five Ranks

Eight hundred seventy-five Air Force Reserve officers now on inactive duty will receive promotions effective 31 March, Lt. Gen. Leon W. Johnson, USAF, Commander of the Continental Air Command, has announced.

The promotions will include 820 Air Reserve officers now participating in general and professional training in Air Reserve groups and squadrons and 55 officers receiving specialized training in these units.

The promotions will move 37 lieutenant colonels to colonel, 154 majors to lieutenant colonel, 642 captains to major, nine first lieutenants to captain and 33 second lieutenants to first lieutenant.

Madrid Flights Planned

The Atlantic Division of MATS will operate trans-Atlantic flights to Madrid in support of the Air Force's base building project in Spain.

Using C-54 aircraft, the 1600th Air Transport Group will airlift cargo, mail and passengers to the Spanish capital. One trip a week is planned. Meanwhile, in Europe, the 86th Air Transport Squadron will fly support airlift trips to Madrid from Frankfurt on a basis of 16 trips a month.

Lt. Col. Ray USAF WAF Chf.

Lt. Col. Marie L. Ray, former WAF staff director, Headquarters, MATS, Washington, D. C., has been appointed WAF staff director, USAF, Wiesbaden Post, Germany.

She succeeds Col. Phyllis D. Gray, who left Wiesbaden last December for appointment as Director, WAF, USAF. Colonel Ray joined the service in 1942 with a direct appointment as an ensign in the Navy. After rising to lieutenant commander, she transferred to the Air Force in 1949 with the rank of major.

CTAF, Now 2 Years Old, Gives Atomic Training

Crew Training Air Force, created in 1952 to produce combat crews faster and at less cost, celebrated its second anniversary 1 April.

Designed to provide training of combat ready crews for interceptors, fighters and bombers, Crew TAF is now comprised of eight bases under the command of Maj. Gen. Charles F. Born, USAF.

During its first year of operation, CrewTAF turned out over 2400 complete combat crews for use in operational commands, TAC, SAC and ADC. However, shortly after its first birthday, fighting stopped in Korea. CrewTAF personnel was cut 18 per cent and plans mapped for lengthier and more thorough training.

Student loads were adjusted to actual training capacities. Recently, atomic techniques were incorporated into the bomber programs at Randolph AFB, Tex., and A-bomb techniques also are now taught to fighter pilots.

Despite cutbacks at some bases, Luke AFB, Ariz., and Laughlin AFB, Tex., almost doubled the size of their classes being trained in the F-84 Thunderjet.

In spite of CrewTAF's adjusted training during its second year, 573,371 jet hours were flown and 4500 more combat crews graduated. And third year plans for the training program are being evolved with consideration of the new and better planes CrewTAF will receive, such as the Martin B-57B Night Intruder.

"A Blistering Message." The sad story of the progressive decline in Service career incentives and how it is threatening a deterioration in the defense forces was told to a national audience of nearly 11 million readers last Sunday. "Stop Driving Our Best Soldiers Out of Service!" was the title of an article appearing in "This Week Magazine" as a part of the Sunday edition of the New York Herald-Tribune and 33 other large newspapers from coast to coast. The article was by Col. Oliver G. Haywood, jr., in collaboration with Marguerite Higgins.

Colonel Haywood, who was graduated at the top of the 1936 class at the U. S. Military Academy, resigned from the Air Force after 22 years of service. At the time of his resignation, he submitted a letter to Air Force Headquarters setting forth the loss of rights suffered by the Services and declaring that "As a senior officer I must impose on able and patriotic subordinates conditions of second-class citizenship. . . . The degradation of military status must lead to a decline in the quality of our military establishment."

The article sets forth in straight-forward language that the public can understand the sorry story so familiar to Service personnel—the loss of retirement rights, the shabby treatment in the matter of pay, the decline in post exchange and commissary privileges, the failure to assure dependent medical care and the many other acts that have served to detract from the desirability of the Services as a career.

"Does America want its military leadership of tomorrow to come from the bargain basement?" is the provocative question Colonel Haywood poses in the closing paragraph of his article.

This is a real instance of presenting the problem to the public. An aroused national sentiment will give strong support to the Department of Defense leadership and the members of Congress who are seeking corrective legislation.

Operation "School-Term." Air Force Assistant Secretary H. Lee White has touched upon a most important morale factor in his current study into the possibility of correlating personnel transfers with school terms. Nothing so upsets a family, in or out of the Service, than to be forced to uproot children from their schools in the middle of terms. Yet it is done so often that Service children have great difficulty in keeping up with their contemporaries in civilian life. If, as Mr. White hopes, a system can be devised whereby officer and NCO transfers could be concentrated in time periods corresponding to the breaks in school years it would contribute immeasurably to family morale.

This is one of the fields in which good administration can help the career incentive program. The needs of the Service are paramount, of course, but if they could be adjusted in these times of relative peace to synchronize with normal family programs, the end result would be a real boost to family morale which in turn would mean a more efficient operation and improved National Defense at no cost to the government. We wish Assistant Secretary White and his aides a large measure of success in their endeavor.

PXs Win Kind Word. It is a distinct tribute to the current administration of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service that it has won some kind words from retail trade organizations. The National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers, in a recent statement, commended the Exchange Service for its efforts to curb the so-called abuses and limit PXs to their function of serving the Services. Even the American Retail Federation, which instigated the most recent investigation into Exchanges, is now denying that it ever advocated the closing down or drastic curtailment of post exchanges. Retail jewelers, who in the past have been among the most vocal objectors, have turned in only five complaints as the result of a national survey conducted by the Exchange Service.

This change of attitude can be attributed to a number of causes. The report of the Hess Subcommittee, which not only exonerated the exchanges of the charges of the American Retail Federation but also commended their operation, was most effective. The growing understanding of the Services' problem is also influential. But most important is the sincerity of the Exchange Service administration and its honest efforts to

Taxing the Retired

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I have lately read in THE JOURNAL of a bill to give retired personnel certain exemptions on Federal income tax. According to that bill, if a retired man doesn't earn over $900 per annum he gets the exemption. If he earns as much as $1800 per year he would receive no exemption. It seems to me that this bill operates against the majority of retired people, that is, a great majority of retired people have to work in order to get along. The bill would help, for the most part, those who receive enough retired pay so that they do not have to work. The full exemption should be given whether the retired person is working or not.

I am working on a job and the withholding tax last year was $320. The withholding tax on my retired pay was $45. But, when my annual income from my job was added to my annual retired pay, I found myself forced to pay a total of $758. So, by having to pay income tax on the retired pay the $45 which is the withholding tax on my retired pay is expanded so that it becomes $438. Anyway, the $438 has to come out of either my working pay or retired pay. Of course, this new bill, referred to above, wouldn't do me any good, as I earn over $1800 per year. However, if my retired pay amounted to, say, 4 or 5 hundred dollars per month, I wouldn't have to get out and work for a living in order to support my family. And then on the bill referred to I would get some exemption. The best plan is to do away with payment of income tax on retired pay altogether, or, let the annual retired pay not be added to earned on the job income, to thus place a person in an upper bracket for tax purposes. After all, the retired pay I received last year was not earned by me in that calendar year but over a period of past years' service.

In conclusion, I don't know where the $393 that I owe on income taxes for last year is going to come from. I also don't know how I will be able to pay off over $2,000 to other creditors. Or whether I will have to drop my GI insurance, or the insurance I have to help pay for my son's education.

Setting Up A Water Heater

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Your issue of 23 Jan. carries a rather interesting item concerning the novel modification of the standard immersion water heater developed by the officers at Camp Gordon, Ga.

I presume that the heater mentioned is the standard one issued by the Quartermaster Corps for heating water for washing mess kits.

The claim is made that the modification will mean a yearly saving of 3000 man-hours since the new bracket allows the heater to be set up in one hour instead of the usual two. Based on this reported estimate of saving of man-hours in only one small training group, it is astounding to think of the astronomical savings when you apply the figures to the man-hours that the rest of the serve the Services and to prevent violations of the regulations.

While keeping its operations open and above board and beyond valid criticism, the Exchange Service has at the same time increased its service to soldiers and airmen. Prices have been progressively lowered as economies and more efficient operation permitted. Profits, while held to a minimum, have been sufficient to permit substantial contributions to the welfare and recreation of service personnel. The recent report of the European Exchange Service, wherein it was revealed that more than seven million dollars was turned over last year to the welfare fund for soldiers, sailors and airmen in Germany and Austria, was a most heartening document.

With the growing approval of its operation, the Exchange Service hopes that it will be given permission to extend its services to two badly needed fields—children's clothing and such automobile necessities as tires, tubes and batteries. Its inability to stock these items now constitutes a hardship on Service personnel. Extension into these fields would fill a genuine need for Service families.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—The Secretary of War announced this week that in spite of recent manpower shifts the division of the Army remains at about one-third in the Army Air Force and the balance rather evenly split between the ground forces and the service forces.

50 Years Ago—The foresight of the Bureau of Equipment in the installation of a coaling station near the Isthmus of Panama is now manifested in the ability of our vessels to maintain station at Colon and at the same time be within easy distance of a well equipped coaling station. Porto Bello, some fifty miles distant from Colon, is now the coaling headquarters for the fleet operating in the neighborhood of the Isthmus of Panama.

90 Years Ago—The United States and England are the only two great Powers which recruit their armies by voluntary enlistment, stimulated by bounties. In France, Prussia, Austria and Russia a system of conscription is regularly organized and enforced.

Army must be expending on this one item.

In reflecting my own experience during World War II with the QMC immersion heater, I am indeed discouraged to learn that so much time was wasted. On the other hand, it just struck me that the Camp Gordon group must have been erecting this item "by-the-numbers." Usually, and even under adverse conditions, I can remember that this heater could be erected and installed in 15 minutes at the most and in 5 minutes if the rush was on.

It is not intended to detract from the idea, but why in heaven's name does this heater now require two hours to set up or even one hour with the modification?

Service Overcoat—

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Recent accounts in THE JOURNAL reported the studies on the uniform for the Army and the decision reached to change it once more.

In those studies I wonder if any thought was given to supplying enlisted men with an overcoat they would be proud to wear rather than having them appear on the streets in the coldest weather looking as though they were step-children for whom no overcoat was available? Why not let them wear all the stripes and "fruit salad" they do on their blouses on overcoats as well as that may be one of the reasons for leaving the former uncovered?

COLONEL, AUS RETIRED

defense ON CAPITOL HILL

DETAILS of the Defense Department's medical care bill for Service families were unfolded to Congress this week by Representative Bob Wilson (R-Calif.), who said its passage "will signal an end to the creeping cutbacks that have seriously damaged military morale at a time we can least afford it."

Mr. Wilson, a member of the House Armed Services Committee and a sponsor of a military pay raise bill, said the proposal has the approval of President Eisenhower and is soon to emerge from the Bureau of the Budget for action by Congress.

Here are pertinent excerpts from Mr. Wilson's statement to the House of Representatives:

You might well ask: "What is so unusual about that? Do not we provide medical care for service families now?"

As a matter of fact, we do provide some medical care for some service dependents, but it is offered to them sometimes begrudgingly, on a basis of privilege rather than of right. The proposed bill, on the other hand, could well be termed a dependents' bill of rights for medical treatment. It would establish a definite obligation of the services to provide medical treatment to servicemen's families, an obligation that many of us in Congress may have assumed was being fully discharged.

In these days of deep concern over the strength of the defenses of our Nation, we must not overlook the importance of maintaining high morale and fighting efficiency of our defenders, those in the military service today in whose hands we are trustfully placing our future existence.

SURVEYS AND PERSONAL INTERVIEWS have convinced many of us that the No. 1 concern of the fighting man today is the safety and well-being of his family. The airman on duty in the frozen Arctic reaches, the sailor on an extended cruise away from his home, the marine and infantryman on a foreign shore is most concerned that his family is being cared for while he is away.

Mr. Speaker, this proposed bill guarantees to our fighting forces that this usually recognized privilege of medical care for dependents is, in fact, an entitlement that he can count on. With that assurance, the fighting man on our global defense line can turn to his job at hand with renewed confidence and higher efficiency.

PREAMBLE

The preamble to the proposed bill carried a statement of intent that bears out the importance of medical care. It states in part:

The Congress believes that programs of medical care have been and will be, important factors in the creation and maintenance of great courage in face of combat and other service conditions throughout the Armed Forces, because it assures members of the Armed Forces at home and overseas that the medical care of dependents will not be denied by reason of member's service or member's absence on extended active duty.

This forward-looking legislation, as proposed, will cover dependents of servicemen and women, active and retired, and the widows and dependent children of deceased service personnel. It includes all branches of the military, including the Coast Guard, when on active duty with the Navy.

One of the most important provisions is that it makes full use of existing military medical facilities and staff. The bill provides specifically that military medical facilities would be used to the fullest extent possible.

In cases where such military facilities were not capable of providing the authorized treatment, or in cases of emergency, medical care would be provided at Government expense from duly licensed civilian physicians and surgeons, and at duly accredited civilian hospitals and treatment facilities. Use of military medical facilities would be specifically directed in cases where the care could not be furnished more economically by civilian means.

10 % PATIENT COST

In order to prevent possible overuse of the new program, the Secretary of Defense would be allowed to assess a nominal contribution from each patient for the medical care rendered. Current thinking in the Department of Defense is for a charge to the patient of about 10 percent of the cost. In the case of hospitalization, this would about equal the nominal subsistence charge now made to dependents who have been treated at service hospitals. Outpatient medical care at a military dispensary, or clinic, would not be charged to the patient under the proposed regulations.

MEDICAL CARE would include such treatment as diagnosis, acute medical and surgical treatment, immunization, and maternity and infant care. It would include hospitalization, where needed, except for domiciliary care of chronic diseases, chronic nervous or mental disorders, and certain contagious diseases. In acute emergencies, it would include ambulance service, and in special cases would also include house calls by the physician.

This bill, when passed, will have an immediate and far-reaching effect on the Armed Services, where morale is at an all-time low, and reenlistment rates are the lowest in history.

REVERSE "PREVIOUS TREND"

IT WILL MEAN that this Congress and the Eisenhower administration have reversed the ominous trend that has progressively whittled away servicemen's benefits over the past 10 years. It will signal an end to the creeping cutbacks that have seriously damaged military morale at a time we can at least afford it.

I understand that this legislation has the approval of the various branches of the military, of the Defense Department itself, and of President Eisenhower. I understand it has been thoroughly discussed at the Budget Bureau and is soon to emerge from there for action by the Congress. It is my earnest hope that we may act quickly, forthrightly, and sensibly when this long-needed legislation comes before us for consideration and action. Action on this matter is long overdue.

EARNEST DESIRE of the Defense Dept. to improve Service housing was demonstrated this week in the strong presentation made by Asst. Defense Sec'y Floete, Properties and Installations, to the Senate Armed Services Committee. He spoke in behalf of Guaranteed Rental Projects proposed for France, where 2966 units are proposed. The House Committee has O.K'd the plan. Mr. Floete said Service families in France are forced to live in facilities "which are either substandard or exorbitant in cost." He said unnaturally long family separations are detrimental to morale.

THE USCOA ACT — Uniformed Services Contingency Option Act of 1953—is being amended to extend from 30 April to 30 Nov. the deadline for persons with 18 years or more service to make their election. Not affected by the amendment are those on the retired lists, who still must make their choice by 30 April. The Senate and House Armed Services Committees have cleared the amending legislation.

VAIHINGEN, GERMANY. Brig. Gen. George A. Rehm, (left), Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans, Seventh Army, is congratulated by Brig. Gen. E. B. Gjelsteen, Chief of Staff, Seventh Army, during a review in honor of General Rehm, who has been reassigned to Fort Hood, Tex.

Indo-China and the Coming Geneva Parley—

COMMENT ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS

AMERICA's policy toward Red China, not only with regard to Korea and Indo-China but with regard to the coming Geneva conference, and ultimate recognition as well, was described this week in memorable manner by Secretary of State Dulles. His terms were exact in certain important respects and for a reason succinctly stated: "The chances for peace are usually bettered by letting a potential aggressor know in advance where his aggression could lead him." It is impossible to forget the unfortunate inferences drawn in January 1950 from some official remarks in Washington which are thought to have encouraged North Korea to its fateful aggression five months later. That is part of the background for Mr. Dulles' speech of last Monday, specifically noting that any present effort to establish Communism in Southeast Asia would be a "grave threat to the whole free community (which) should be met by united action." The Secretary then continued:

"This might involve serious risks. But these risks are far less than those that will face us a few years from now, if we dare not be resolute today. The free nations want peace. However, peace is not had merely by wanting it. Peace has to be worked for and planned for. Sometimes it is necessary to take risks to win peace."

A CONSIDERABLE PART of the address dealt with anxious inquiries which have been voiced, on the one hand over whether we are planning to give in to Red China at the Geneva conference and, on the other hand, whether we are to refuse any proposals for the composition of differences. The Secretary made it clear that this country will do what is best for its interests at a given time; recalling President Monroe's decision (also made in connection with an aggressive Russia, by the way) "to consider the government de facto as the legitimate government" and noting that this is America's sound general policy, Mr. Dulles added that "where it does not serve our interests we are free to vary from it." In the case of Red China "we are forced to take account of the fact that the Chinese Communist regime has been consistently and viciously hostile," so that to the question: "Will it help our country if by recognition we give increased prestige and influence to a regime that actively attacks our vital interests? I can find only the answer 'No.'" And again, to the question: "Will it serve the interests of world order to bring into the United Nations a regime which is a convicted aggressor, which has not purged itself from that aggression, and which continues to promote the use of force in violation of the principles of the United Nations? I can find only the answer 'No.'"

Briefly, unemotionally, he referred to Russia's ignoring of the Litvinov pledges which won her American recognition in 1933, to the broken Yalta pledges of 1945 for a liberated Europe and a support for Nationalist China, all of which were broken by Russia, and to Red China's 40 violations of the Korean compact, and then proceeded: "We recognize that nothing human is immutable (but) it is now the policy of the United States not to exchange United States performance for Communist promises." It is extremely important to note that word "now." We are not immutable.

IN INDO-CHINA, with whose future the Geneva conference is largely concerned, the French Union forces have done a good deal to spoil Red China's planning. Under the bold leadership of Col. Christien de Castries (a spectacularly resourceful French veteran whom President Eisenhower referred to admiringly) the garrison at Dienbienphu has not only repulsed the massive Red assaults but at the right moment has engaged in sorties by foot, tank, and airplane which have caught the exhausted enemy unprepared, and hurt him badly. The war was not going to be won or lost at Dienbienphu, but a Red success there would have been a lively stimulant to Red morale and an asset for negotiation at Geneva. One gathers from the dispatches that Colonel de Castries would have done the same amount of fighting regardless of that aspect of the case, but it is certain that he and his command have succeeded in putting a considerable dent in Chinese plans. It is quite possible that the fight at that redoubt may have historic results, chiefly in stimulating French pride in its colonial combat forces, at a season when a large number of Frenchmen have been disposed to write off Indo-China, with nobody dares say what consequences to the free world. Anxiety over this attitude is responsible for a good deal of American wishing that France might consent to larger use of American training personnel (under Lt. Gen. John W. O'Daniel at USMAG) for the building up of the native Vietnam forces. What Maj. Gen. Cornelius E. Ryan and his colleagues did in Korea to build up the impressive ROK forces might be done all over again in Indo-China; but it would take time, and time may not be too plentiful. Moreover, France's chief military officer, General Paul Ely, left Washington under the clear impression that France does not intend to borrow any training methods from us. It is a pity, but the responsibility for decision is undoubtedly that of France.

COMMUNIST TRADE will be an issue of which we will hear more shortly, and quite possibly in advance of the Geneva meeting. For a good many of our Allies are pressing vigorously for an increase in goods-exchange with Russia in particular and with the satellites in general. Actual trade in munitions is not suggested, but there are a good many definitions of munitions, and there is likely to be a difference of judgment between a nation which wishes to trade and one which does not wish to trade. The exchange of information between President Eisenhower and Sir Winston Churchill a fortnight ago makes it clear that Britain plans a "somewhat radical revision" of the existing agreement, and it is to prevent too radical a change that Harold E. Stassen has just made a hasty trip to Europe for conferences in London and Paris, while members of his mission extend their talks to other capitals.

ATOMIC WARFARE ANXIETIES have become much more pressing since the 1 March test in the Pacific Proving Ground. That was inevitable and far from undesirable. In fact, the growing tendency, both in Russia and in Washington, to release information upon the appalling powers of the H-bomb furnishes its own impressive evidence that mankind is not quite ready for self-extermination. There has long been a hope that awareness of the H-bomb's full implications would be-

*News And Gossip
For Journal Readers*

CONCURRENT TRAVEL TO EUROPE this year, predicted in recent issues of The Journal, is a priority item of planning by Defense officials. That progress is being made is confirmed in a speech received this week which was recently delivered by Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Herren, CG, Northern Area Command, in Germany. He said that "there should be enough housing in many areas in the European Command by 1 August to permit families of men ordered overseas to accompany them."

SERVICE DEPENDENTS are advised not to count unreservedly on this prospect, however much work is going into making it a reality. There's no doubt that housing shortages in specific areas will prevent concurrent travel from being a 100 per cent proposition. And it's possible that expansion of concurrent travel may not occur until after August.

NONETHELESS, EVERY INDICATION points to a giant stride forward in building morale by keeping families together. The separation of family members has been a major reason for officer resignations and slumps in reenlistment rates.

"POCKET GUIDE TO ANYWHERE" is the limitless title of a new pamphlet available from the U.S. Armed Forces Institute, Madison 3, Wisc. The guide is designed to provide general suggestions to U.S. Service personnel on how to conduct themselves abroad—presumably whether in Stuttgart or Saigon.

"ROGERS", the Air Force equivalent of "Oscars", have been presented to members of the cast of "Tops in Blue," who toured for 50 days or more with the show which played to 325,000 military personnel in 210 days before disbanding last month. The Rogers are "military entertainment achievement awards."

VOLUNTEER BANDS are cropping up at some AF bases where full-time bands have been deactivated. In some instances, the volunteers are released from regular duties for rehearsals on the same basis that airmen are given time to practice with base athletic teams.

AUTOMOBILE RAFFLES have replaced slot machine incomes at numerous officer and NCO clubs in the U. S. The NCO Mess at Patrick AFB, Fla., this week took delivery of an iris-blue Cadillac, listing for $4970, which will go to the lucky purchaser of a $1 ticket on July 4.

CARE IS ESSENTIAL lest the boards naming Reserve officers for contract tours be considered, in effect, selection boards. The Services want to be certain this doesn't happen. Factors such as age and critical specialty, are likely to carry relatively more weight in designating Reservists for longer-type contract tours than would be the case in selecting them for promotion.

SIX HUNDRED Naval Reserve officers had applied for "contract tours" at last count. The other Services have yet to announce plans as to how the active duty agreements will be awarded, but are expected to do so shortly.

APPARENT DIFFICULTY developed in picking a new Chief Chemical Officer for the Army. As The Journal went to press, a successor to Maj. Gen. E. F. Bullene, who retired 31 March, had yet to be nominated to the Senate. Brig. Gen. C. E. Loucks is Deputy Chief.

FAMILY WELFARE PROBLEMS, receiving intensive consideration by all the Services, have resulted in a new study by the Air Force to determine if more cannot be done to prevent disruptions in dependent education. AF Asst. Sec'y White has asked for data relative to the possibility of concentrating a larger number of transfers to coincide with the two breaks in the school year. This would probably mean larger numbers of shifts in January-February and June-July.

THE CONGRESSIONAL TOUR made last week by key legislators to Army posts in Texas and N.M. apparently has paid off. At Ft. Hood, Tex., for example, Chairman Dewey Short (R-Mo.) of the Armed Services Committee saw a tank demonstration and commented: "Armored equipment will be more necessary than ever in the Atomic Age. . . . I don't believe there can be a substitute for armored equipment in the Atomic Age."

IT'S A REASONABLE ASSUMPTION that the other Services will arrange similar inspections. The Defense Dept. having approved one, obviously would find it difficult to turn down the Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps.

A DUAL-JOB DILEMMA confronts Asst. Defense Sec'y Hannah, who is simultaneously responsible for manpower and personnel policies of the Defense Department and president of Michigan State College. In the former capacity, he has ordered that thousands of Air Force ROTC students be called to active duty as enlisted men; in his campus post, he could reasonably be assumed to oppose such action strongly. In view of the current controversy on this issue, no one can be more "impartial" than Dr. Hannah. He must now decide whether to stick by his previous decision or amend it.

DR. HANNAH has been given an "additional duty." He is a member of the joint U.S.-Canada Defense Board, and is expected to retain the position when he leaves the Pentagon, probably this summer, to return to full-time campus duties.

THE AIR FORCE BAND has scored an atomic beat. It is the first musical organization to provide background music for a film depicting a hydrogen detonation. The film, "Operation Ivy," was produced by the USAF Lookout Mountain Laboratory, Hollywood, Calif. Original background music was scored and recorded by the AF Band.

THE PRICETAG for the service of a draftee has been put at $11,000 by the Army, not including capital costs or expenditures for major construction and equipment. First-year cost is set at $5800, with the upkeep price thereafter put at $5200 per man.

Ex-Naval Officer Marks 20th Year in Business

A former Naval Officer who established his business on Service clientele today observes the twentieth anniversary of the founding of his store.

When Harry Slavitt started "Harry's Liquor Store" in Washington, DC, on 3 April 1934 (with an opening inventory of $166.24) his first customer was an Army captain (now a retired four-star general). Since then he has catered extensively to the personnel of the Armed Services. As a result he has a wide acquaintanceship around the world.

The walls of his office and store are covered with autographed portraits of ranking officers of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard whom he numbers among his many friends. One of his prized possessions is an album of letters sent to him during the war by commanding generals and flag officers from the various theaters of war.

Harry was never able to follow his youthful ambition to attend one of the Service Academies, but during World War II he was commissioned in the Naval Reserve, serving for three years as an assistant paymaster. In the latter part of his tour of duty he served as an aide to Admiral W. B. Young, then Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts.

During his war Service, the store continued its operation under the direction of his wife. After the war Nat Rubin, who had served with the Air Force in the CBI theater, joined Harry as his chief assistant.

General Dynamics' Sales Up 50%, Earnings 26%

Sales and earnings of General Dynamics Corporation for 1953 jumped to all-time highs it was announced in the submarine and aircraft building firm's annual report issued this week.

A more than 50% climb in sales—from $134,551,610 in 1952 to $206,644,279 in 1953—was registered, with net earnings increasing to $6,218,803, a 26% jump from 1952's $4,917,176.

Based on the outstanding shares of common stock these earnings provided $7.01 per common share in 1953 as compared to $5.72 for the year previous. Dividends of $3.00 per common share were declared in 1953 as compared to 1952's $2.25.

Board Chairman and President John Jay Hopkins in noting the highlights of the firm's activities said it seemed proper to give prominence in the report to an event which, although it occurred in the first month of the new year, was the culmination of a major production program—the launching on 21 Jan. 1954 by Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower of the world's first atomic powered vessel, the submarine "USS Nautilus."

Given also in the report are the financial statistics and production achievements of Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation (Convair) which released its own annual report on 2 March. Since last 15 May when it purchased 17% of Convair's capital stock, General Dynamics has been Convair's largest share owner and Hopkins has been its board chairman. On 1 March 1954 following "months of compatible operation and study" the boards of both companies voted unanimously, subject to approval by share owners, to merge Convair into General Dynamics Corporation.

Slash Port Security Program Despite Warning

have been assigned to waterfront areas "to prevent the introduction into the country of persons or things inimical to the welfare of the United States and to protect vital port facilities."

Those who are concerned with the safety of vital waterfront areas because of the prospective reduction in port security forces recall testimony by VAdm. Merlin O'Neill, Coast Guard Commandant, when the port security program was re-established.

He told a Congressional Committee at that time that "if we are going to have a better safeguard against unconventional attack, then a larger program than this, naturally, would be required."

In October 1950 the program called for utilization of 4772 officers and men.

The fiscal '55 port guard will be curtailed by elimination of shore side patrols of waterfront areas, Coast Guard officials have revealed.

At the same time that the FBI is taking action to acquaint police officers with the danger of atomic weapons being smuggled into the U. S., the Coast Guard is stepping up a campaign of "education and instruction" to civilians who live along the coast lines.

Thousands of pamphlets are being distributed which point up the importance of guarding the ports and control areas against such hazards as carelessness and sabotage.

As a part of the education program, Coast Guard officials consult with Port Authority and maritime industry officials which comprise a Port Security Council. The Council meets periodically for the purpose of hearing recommendations and suggestions "looking toward better security."

Action is now being taken with the view to channeling intelligence to the proper and appropriate office.

Admiral O'Neill has said that elimination of the Shore Patrol would leave the Coast Guard with the following functions, in so far as Port Security is concerned:

1. The Harbor Entrance Patrol which has the purpose of identifying and supervising merchant vessels which seek to enter the major port areas where the interest of National Defense is of prime importance. The vessels subject to inspection under this phase of the Port Security program are those which, by reason of intelligence or other circumstances, are deemed to have a possible hostile intent, or have attained the capability of hostile action.

The performance of this duty requires not only the actual operation of Coast Guard patrol craft, but employment of a force necessary to give a reasonably adequate surveillance of their unloading. The work also requires a small group in each port to collect intelligence regarding anticipated arrivals of merchant vessels.

2. The Issuance of Security Clearances which has the purpose of having available a force of longshoremen and merchant marine personnel who have a maximum security clearance to load or unload cargoes which, by their nature, would make desirable sabotage and espionage targets, and to man merchant ships which are important to the nation's defense.

3. The Supervision of Explosives Loading which has the purpose of reducing hazards to waterfront facilities, personnel and property.

4. Inner Harbor Waterside Patrols which serve to keep the Captains of ports advised of dangerous conditions which arise in the harbor, and to give surveillance to hostile vessels or vessels of a dangerous nature. Harbor patrols are also necessary to guard port facilities from sabotage and to keep open water transportation in connection with other Port Security duties.

"No amount of force could absolutely guarantee the complete accomplishment of these objectives," Admiral O'Neill told the Committee. "This service will employ the resources which are available for their duty to the maximum advantage," he said in Congressional testimony.

Bryan AFB Consolidates Six Accounting Systems

Six separate accounting systems have been consolidated into a single central accounting office at Bryan AFB, Tex., with a resulting 26 per cent cut in overhead and a slash in manpower requirements.

The six offices consolidated were the Nonappropriated Welfare, the Bachelor Officers' Quarters, the Officers' Dining Hall and the NCO, Officers' and Cadets' Open Messes.

The first step toward the merger was taken in the summer of 1953, and completed last January with the incorporation of the welfare fund.

Maj. J. R. Wood, Wing Comptroller, declared the centralized system now standardizes the presentation of accounting data to higher Headquarters, insures compliance with directives, promotes proper and uniform maintenance of accounting records and establishes automatic internal controls between the operational and accounting function of each fund.

and Pioneering Research Divisions will constitute the fact-finding agencies in the fields of human resources and the physical sciences. The product Divisions, namely, Chemicals and Plastics; Textile, Clothing, and Footwear; Mechanical Products; Materials Dispensing and Handling Equipment; and Foods and Containers carry the responsibility for development and evaluation of new QM items required by the Armed Forces.

The QM Food and Container Institute for the Armed Forces, and the Quartermaster Field Evaluation Agency, located at Chicago and Ft. Lee, Va., respectively, are an integral part of the Command and under its direct control.

The acquisition of the facilities at Natick, Mass., enables the Quartermaster Corps R&D Command to carry out its mission more efficiently and on a more economical time and money saving basis.

Air Force Enlistments Fall Below Quota As Shortage Shows In Top-Notch Men

Pentagon officials disclosed late this week that a tentative report shows the Air Force missed by about 500 its March enlistment quota of 10,000.

In itself, this is not considered a serious deficiency by Air Force officials. However, increasing concern is being expressed because of the relative scarcity of Category I and II men among the new enlistees. These are the top mental and physical qualification categories.

As a result, heavier enlistments in the lower categories are required to make up the shortage.

For the first time in many months, the Air Force in February beat its enlistment quota, which was 12,000, and had hoped for continuing success.

Meantime, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has given the Air Force authority to launch its own recruiting on a separate basis from the Army. Air Force officials say that this action will result in a stepped-up enlistment pace.

come so general as to force an international agreement—a real one, such as America sought to advance years ago, and such as Russia then blocked. That hope has increased of late, but within the Pentagon are a good many sound people who point out grimly that it is the very horror of atomic warfare which thus far has been a factor in halting Russian aggression. They also warn that a mere agreement against atomic weapons—even a reliable one—is not quite enough. Indeed, without that great leveler's influence, it is apparent that the military group with the largest non-atomic powers would become relatively far more dangerous than it is today. This gives point to the argument so stoutly advanced by Generals Ridgway and Bolté, among others, in favor of a maintenance of all necessary strength in the conventional ground forces. That argument, presented in several of the speeches by those two Army veterans this winter, is worthy of careful attention by Congress and public alike.

Ordnance Unveils New Amphibious Truck

"SUPERDUCK."—Unveiled by Army Ordnance this week was this new giant, 4-ton large truck that "swims." Dubbed the "Superduck," it was developed for the Detroit Arsenal by GMC Truck and Coach Division of General Motors in Pontiac, Mich.

THE Superduck, successor to the world-famed World War II DUKW which saw action from Guadalcanal to Normandy, was unveiled this week by Col. Harold C. Parsons, Commanding Officer of the Detroit Arsenal.

Developed under the direction of the Detroit Arsenal, the national center for all Army tank-automotive research, the Superduck was designed, engineered and manufactured by the GMC Truck and Coach Division of General Motors in Pontiac, Mich.

Although described as a 2½-ton truck, the vehicle is capable of carrying a 4-ton payload. This load can be transported either over land or through a heavy surf. It is also possible for the Superduck to maneuver easily through soft beach sand under the 4-ton load.

Speeds in excess of 50 miles per hour can be attained in cross-country travel. When afloat the vehicle is capable of travelling at 7 miles per hour.

Among the unique features incorporated in the Superduck are plastic cab construction, desert tires, an automatic inflation system that maintains an even tire pressure under all conditions, and a hydramatic transmission.

A centrally-controlled tire inflation system is installed on the Superduck. This equipment serves a dual purpose in that it not only enables the driver to maintain an even pressure in all tires, but he is also able to vary the pressure to compensate for lighter or heavier payloads, thus extending the useful life of truck tires.

The system is operated from the driver's seat in the cab. Air lines from each of the tires are tied together in a common system fed by a compressor. The common pressure is shown on a gage mounted on the dashboard. If one tire develops a leak, all of the tires deflate equally. The driver then presses a lever on the panel to re-inflate the system. By continually resupplying air to the system, the vehicle may be driven long distances with one or more tires punctured. Variations in tire pressure are controlled by adjusting a dial on the panel.

An improvement on that used on the World War II DUKWs, it is expected that the present system will be used on other special purpose vehicles developed by the Ordnance Corps.

Board of Visitors Meets at Air Univ.

The Air University Board of Visitors, a panel of distinguished educators and businessmen, were conducting their 10th annual review of the Air Force educational system this week to provide expert advice and guidance on educational policies.

The Board visited all institutions of the Air University system and studied in detail methods being used to serve more than 200,000 students all over the world.

Specific educational subjects considered by the Board included plans for a USAF Educational Conference next year, long range requirements for Air University graduates, accreditation and degree granting and organization of research.

To facilitate their inspection, members of the Board of Visitors divided themselves into sub-committees to inspect different institutions, then met as a whole to draft a report to the Chief of Staff of the Air Force.

Schools and research units visited were Headquarters of the Air University, the USAF School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Air Force Base, Texas; the USAF Institute of Technology at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio; Headquarters, Air Force ROTC, Montgomery; the Air War College, Air Command and Staff School, Research Studies Institute, Air University Library, Extension Course Institute and branches of the School of Aviation Medicine at Maxwell and Gunter Air Force Bases.

The Board of Visitors were welcomed individually and as a group by Lt. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, Commander, Air University, and a review was held in their honor at Gunter.

Members of the Board who serve in an advisory capacity at the personal invitation of the Chief of Staff, United States Air Force, attending the session were Dr. Letlev W. Bronk, President and Chief Executive Officer, Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research; Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Erhols, USAF (Ret), President Northrop Aircraft, Inc.; Mr. William V. Kahler, President Illinois Bell Telephone Co.; Dr. J. Roscoe Miller, President Northwestern University; Dr. Franklin D. Murphy, Chancellor, University of Kansas; Very Rev. John A. O'Brien, S.J., President College of the Holy Cross; Dr. Stanley F. Teele, Associate Dean, Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard University; Dr. Blake R. Van Leer, President, Georgia Institute of Technology; and Brig. Gen. Hume Peabody, USAF, (Ret), executive director of AF Historical Foundation, special consultant.

Members of the Board who were unable to attend are Dr. Samuel M. Brownell, Commissioner of Education, U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and Dr. John E. W. Sterling, President, Stanford University.

Colonel Main, who entered the Air Force as a flying cadet in 1942, engaged in anti-submarine patrol work during WW II until transferred to the C-B-I Theatre. He will be succeeded as Deputy by Lt. Col. Marion A. Bradshaw.

Spain To Benning

USARPAC CG

Maj. Gen. Clark L. Ruffner, formerly Military Assistant to the Assistant Defense Secretary for International Security Affairs, has been named officially to replace Lt. Gen. John W. O'Daniel as CG for the U.S. Army, Pacific.

General O'Daniel will leave early next month to head the MAAG in Indo-China.

He will replace Maj. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, who is understood to be in line for command of the new armored division to be activated at Ft. Hood, Tex.

Shift USMC Generals; Gen. Cates To Retire

Maj. Gen. Randolph McCall Pate, USMC, is slated to become Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps and Chief of Staff at USMC Headquarters. He will relieve Lt. Gen. Gerald C. Thomas, USMC, who will assume duties of Lt. Gen. Clifton B. Cates, USMC, as Commandant, Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va.

General Cates has signified his intention to apply for voluntary retirement 30 June. He will retire with the four star rank he held in 1952 as Commandant of the Marine Corps.

General Pate, currently CG of the 1st Marine Division in Korea, was commissioned a 2d lieutenant in the Corps in 1921.

As Deputy Chief of Staff to the CG, FMF, Pacific, General Pate performed many complex duties which aided the CG during the time of the amphibious operations on Palau, Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

Prior to WWII, he served in the Republic of Santo Domingo, China and Hawaii.

He was assigned to duty as Chief of Staff of the Marine Corps Schools in July 1948, and later was named Director of the Marine Corps Educational Center, Marine Corps Schools, Quantico. He was then assigned to the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in July, 1951, where he served as Deputy Director of the Joint Staff for Logistic Plans. In November 1951, he was named CG of the 1st Marine Division.

General Thomas enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1917 and saw action at Verdun, Belleau Wood, Soissons, and participated in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in September 1918.

On Feb. 1952, he was designated by the President as Assistant to the Commandant.

Snow Hall Nears Finish At Army Artillery Center

Snow Hall, the Artillery School's new $2,500,000 academic building named after the late Maj. Gen. William J. Snow, first Chief of Field Artillery, will be completed by 1 July at Ft. Sill, Okla.

The two-story structure will be completely air conditioned and large enough to house 50 classrooms and 2500 students. Its interior occupies some 190,000 square feet of floor space.

In addition to classrooms, the building will consist of an auditorium, offices, a lounge, storage rooms, snack bar, kitchen, mechanical equipment room, textbook and instrument issue rooms, dressing rooms and a rapid reading room.

Service PX "Control" Program Wins Support of Top Retailer Associations

Maj. Gen. Edward H. White, Chief of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, expressed satisfaction this week on learning that the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers had released a statement in which they said the Services are to be "commended highly" for their work in curbing exchange privilege and in indoctrinating military personnel on the meaning of their exchange.

The NARCF, which at one time had been critical of exchange operations, praised the publication of Defense Department Fact Sheet FS-8, You and Your Exchange. This pamphlet is currently being distributed to commanding officers of all three Services. It stresses promoting harmony with local civilian merchants through the prevention of unauthorized practices in exchanges. The pamphlet was prepared for the Defense Department by John J. Ryan, Chief of Technical Information, HQ AAFES.

"I believe the retail associations are now convinced of our sincerity in rooting out and eliminating those practices which, in the past, were irritating to them and, I might add, just as irritating to us," General White stated. He noted that Roland Jones, President of the American Retail Federation at the ARF convention in Washington recently voiced sentiments similar to those of the NARCF.

General White observed that in his meeting with the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the heads of the leading retailers associations over the past six months he has found increasing understanding of the value of the Service exchange and a willingness on the part of these organizations to be fair-minded and reasonable in their approach to the exchange question.

General White attributed this attitude to an increasing concern on the part of many civic leaders and businessmen toward the problem of morale in the Armed Services. He also felt the exchange program of providing full facts on exchange operations to these groups has reduced misunderstandings on the actual scope of exchange operations and its place in the Service welfare picture.

Complaints about unauthorized practices by exchange patrons have almost ceased, the Exchange Service Chief added. In December in a newsletter circulated to 6000 jewelry retailers, General White asked retailers to express any complaints they had on this subject. In the four months since then, only 5 such complaints were received from the entire country and only 3 contained specific information which afforded a basis for investigation.

"I take this as evidence that through the cooperation of installation commanders and exchange personnel we have just about eliminated this problem," General White added. "Although it is necessarily a subject which must receive unceasing attention in order to assure a continuation of the exchange privilege."
